THE RUTLAND MARBLE STRIKE.

If Rutland is noted for strikes, it is not, too, for the length of them. There are strikes and strikes, but the Rutland labor troubles have them all beaten. They have a faculty for hanging on, while most other difficulties are settled after a few weeks' duration. But here is this trouble in the marble industry of that section about to start on the fourth week, with an authoritative statement to the effect that there is no hope of settlement in sight. Each side is stubborn about making concessions, although it is said that an agreement was nearly patched up, only to be thrown over at the last minute. Now both the employers and their former employees give out the statement that there is no prospect of settlement; and one of the marble quarry owners has gone so far as to purchase a ticket for a trip to Europe, having planned to shut down operations entirely at his plant for a period of two months at least. A labor war of great duration would have a most deleterious effect on the business of Rutland and that city can scarcely afford to pass through it. There are already two unsettled labor difficulties in that city, and one in the marble business, of vastly greater proportions, would leave Rutland in bad shape. Let the employers recognize the union squarely and then let the two get together with a real intention of meeting each other half way. If we may be pardoned the allusion, we would refer to the manner of settling difficulties in the Barre granite industry as a good example of the right way to solve the problem. Neither side can be pig headed in the matter.

"But Mr. Editor this is the farmer's year, and the candidate must be a farmer who has his money invested in his land, who hires his own help and depends upon his day's work and income from his farm for his support," says a correspondent to one state newspaper. The "farmer's year" is getting to be such a worn out expression that it may react in the campaign. There will be a large percentage of farmers in the legislature, as usual, but the freemen of the state must bear in mind that they are electing representatives of all classes, not of one.

The Montpelier Argus is authority for the statement that another hotel is to be erected in Montpelier, which will be amply able to take care of the large crowds which gather there for conventions and particularly during legislative times. The Rutland News will probably ask if it is to be run on the "cracker barrel and cheese box" style during convention and legislative periods.

Says the Waterbury Record: No one can find fault with the Republican ticket named today at the Washington county convention. Good men have been nominated—men who have influence and ability.

And we would give a cookie to know whether Editor Whitehill wrote that before or after getting the results of the convention. He was about right, no matter when he wrote it.

And now Charles W. Fairbanks has been assured, with a little less ceremony, that he was nominated for vice president by the Republicans. The campaign may now proceed so far as this political party is concerned.

Barre and Montpelier are proud of their representatives on the diamond, not alone because they are playing winning ball but because they are playing it in a gentlemanly manner.

The beef trust is said to be going to pieces. Here's hoping the pieces will be small enough for mastication.

There were a good many people who forgot today that they had grown old. It was circus day.

It is said that bears are increasing in numbers in Windham county and that there is plenty of evidence of them in the mountains of Wilmington, Somerset and Stratton. They were very numerous up to fifteen or twenty years ago, when the invasion of portable saw mills began to make havoc with the forests. An old hunter in that section says the bears ought to be let alone and if some foolish laws can be repealed there will be plenty of that game.

Thirty-two miles of new steel has just been put in on the main line of the Central Vermont railroad between Braintree and Hartford. The steel weighs 80 pounds to the yard and replaces 75 pound steel which has been down seven years. The cost of the steel for this stretch at $20 a ton, the selling price now, is $80,000. The work was commenced on July 5 and was finished last Wednesday, a large gang of men being kept continually at work. The steel which has been taken out, it is expected, will be put in on the New London Northern division.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. Roosevelt spends much of her time in charitable work at Oyster Bay. Mrs. Victor H. Metcalf, wife of the new member of the Roosevelt cabinet, is a fine horsewoman and an expert swimmer.

Mrs. Mary Shannon is a section boss on the Erie railroad. She took her husband's position when he died and has filled it well.

Mimo, de Navarro (Mary Anderson) sat to the painter Watts for five years before her portrait was finished. She loved to hear him talk, and he talked most of the time.

The first colored woman lawyer in Kentucky, Mrs. Sallie J. S. White, took her degree at the commencement exercises this year of the Central Law school of the colored state university.

By the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Geese at Lewes, England loses its only woman gravedigger. On the death of her husband in 1870 she was appointed to carry on his duties at the Lewes cemetery. She was seventy-six years of age.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's desire as a girl was to become a nun. Her relatives thought that she would be a great success as a milliner, but a friend, with a keener insight into her character and ability, urged her mother to have her trained for the stage.

Miss Mabel Biggart of New York city, who returned from a four years' European trip during which she made a study of all classes of people, is now in New Mexico, where she will make a study of the Indians and of their environments. She is an ethnologist of considerable prominence.

An Iodol of the Meat Strike.

Miss Maud Myrtilla Green was wooed by two impassioned beaux; Each earnestly her favor sued And often would propose. James Henry Brown, to win her smile, Tuck her across the lake; Adolphus Perkins, full of guile, Sent her a siren steak.

James Henry writhed in helpless ire, And inwardly he balled; When she told how she fixed the fire And had that siren broiled, James Henry sent her pounds of fudge And caramels and drops; Adolphus did not cash begrudge, He sent her mutton chops!

James Henry sought to knock his foe And talked of saving coin; Adolphus was a crafty beau— He brought a tenderloin. James Henry sighed, "You can't believe How much in love I am." Adolphus wrote, "Please to receive, By bearer, one large ham."

Miss Maud Myrtilla Green remarked, "The sweetest how Henry took, But, oh, how splendid to be sparked Each day with three square meals!" But still she could not quite decide Which one she liked the most— James Henry spoke of suicide; Adolphus sent a roast.

At last James Henry came to call And brought a suit-case; He said, "Your finger is so small— But may I put this there?" She flung James Henry with distress; She said, "That old style thing! Adolphus got me to say 'Yes'— He brought a beef bone ring." —W. D. Nesbit in Chicago "Tribune."
